BRAND STORY

History of the Betty Crocker

Cordially yours,

Betty Crocker

Betty's name was chosen because it is considered a pleasant and welcome name that is popular across the United States. The surname Crocker was to commemorate William Crocker, director of the General Mill's predecessor, Washburn Crosby. A sample of Betty Crocker's signature submitted by a female employee is considered to be the most distinctive and the logo of the Betty Crocker based on it is still in use today.

Betty Crocker's character image was put into use for the first time in 1936. It is a "motherhood image" that combines the characteristics of several family service members. It has been cleverly changed over the years, but always meets General Mills' cultural understanding of American housewives — "knowledge and care."

In 1954, General Mills independent of the bakery product line, and based on the original Betty Crocker signature based on the design of Betty's red spoon symbol, this symbol has also been used today.

In 2017, Aier Kitchenware became the exclusive official licensee of Betty Crocker Betty Crocker Kitchenware, a well-known brand of General Mills in the United States. We will follow the service concept of General Mills and let more people fall in love with baking!

In 1921, General Mills, a Fortune 500 company, launched an outreach campaign for its Gold Flour. Through this event, General Mills received more than a million responses and a lot of baking issues a year, and Betty Crocker was used to respond to consumer letters in the image of a "baking knowledgeable". At the same time, the company established a test kitchen for testing gold medal flour, which was later named "Betty Mickey Kitchen".

In 1924, the radio program named "Betty Mickey Wireless Cookery School" named after Betty Crocker made its debut in Minnesota. This is the first radio cooking show in the United States and one of the longest-running shows in radio history. In the next few decades, this program is the most popular program in the United States.

In 1950, Betty Crocker Star Matinee, a television program based on the image of Betty Crocker, appeared on the television screen. The first time Betty Crocker played with a friendly and affectionate image. At the same time, Betty Miao's "Mystery Fruit Cake" advertisement was also the first color advertisement on the CBS network, which had aroused strong repercussions.

In 2003, Betty's kitchen was redesigned. The new facility boasts more than 7,000 square feet of kitchen space and 19 fully equipped independent kitchens. Each year, more than 5,000 formulas are tested for consumers and excellent and delicious recipes are selected. Recommended to consumers, will also invite consumers to visit and try Betty's new products.
